Lutterworth compromises on trailer lot user fees

by Jerry Grozelle

It pays to negotiate in Lutterworth Township, representatives of three trailer parks in the township have learned.

Last Wednesday evening, trailer park owners met with council to hash out an equitable agreement on "user fees" for trailer sites.

Lutterworth council had passed a by-law setting a $150 per site fee. The council meeting immediately following the passage of that by-law saw a delegation attend to protest the fee. At that meeting, council decided to give the park operators the opportunity to come up with an alternate plan.

A $150 per lot fee would have generated about $20,000 annually for the township. Park owners were adamant that the $150 per lot fee was excessive, given the fact that they already pay taxes on the properties as well as any improvements to their lands, which provide services for the trailer owners.

Paul Llewellyn of Lutterworth Valley Trailer Park told council it wasn't the licence that he objected to. What the park owners found objectionable was the per-lot fee.

"The monetary issue is the biggest bone of contention," he said.

Park owners and council members went over the by-law clause by clause. After less than an hour of deliberations at last Wednesday's special meeting, council relented and adopted a fee schedule that was proposed by park owner Russ Wunker of Miner's Bay Lodge.

Music by the Gull

The Grandfathers Four (minus one) were the featured performers for Friday evening's Music by the Gull. The entertainers, left to right, are Don Burch, Eldon Deacon and Bill Payne. This week's entertainers will be the Haliburton Highlands Swing Band.

That proposal called for a graduated licensing system, based on numbers of lots in each park. After fine tuning, council agreed to annual fees of $150 for operators with one to 49 sites, $250 for parks with 50 to 99 sites and $400 for operations with 100 or more sites.

"Smaller parks should have a lesser proportional fee than the larger parks," Wunker said.

Lutterworth Reeve Jim McMahon admitted that studies have determined a need for more camp sites and trailer parks in Haliburton County. He said that municipal officials are not trying to drive businesses out of the township, as was suggested by the park owners.

Park owners requested the fee schedule to be set for a specified term so the issue wouldn't have to be revisited every year.

Deputy-Reeve Lisa Mercer suggested that the term should not exceed the current council's term of office.

"I'm glad to see you've got your hearts back in the right place," said Ingram Wessell of Wessell's Trailer Park. "I was beginning to think you had lost them."

"Council has been very co-operative and very considerate," Wunker added.

Campaign to bring back OPP heats up

by Jerry Grozelle

Police services in Haliburton county were a big issue at last Wednesday's county council meeting.

Al Mayo approached council last Wednesday afternoon to gain support in the quest to bring administration of police services back to Haliburton County.

Mayo told the county's elected representatives that moving administration of the local OPP to Coboconk was a mistake.

Mayo said that an OPP office is "wanted and needed" in Minden.

"We're the only county in Ontario without full-fledged OPP services," he said.

Mayo said that he agrees the government has to make cuts to bring its budget into line, but not at the expense of police services. He disagrees with the way the administration was moved to Coboconk, without any consultation and during the winter when there were no cottagers in the area.

"The public wasn't informed as the process was going on," he said, adding that he has spoken to a wide cross section of people about the issue.

He has received unanimous support from the municipal councils and cottage associations he has approached.

"People want to see it as it was, and even improved if possible," Mayo said. "It's everybody's problem. We've got to take the initiative now."

Placard carrying protesters on Highway 35 and at Queen's Park are on Mayo's agenda if a satisfactory conclusion isn't reached soon.

Mayo asked for County Council support in his efforts to return full OPP services to Minden. Warden Murray Fearrey assured Mayo that the county has been actively working toward the same goal.

"We realized there was a problem in January," Fearrey said. "We never got a straight answer. The Solicitor General said there would be dialogue with everybody concerned, but it never happened."

Fearrey said that negotiations are under way to secure suitable accommodations in Minden and he has been assured that "something is going to happen to bring the OPP back."

The Ontario Realty Corporation is currently in negotiations with the owner of the building the OPP has been using. There is also the possibility of using a portion of the Ministry of Natural Resources building in Minden.

The key to bringing the OPP administration back to Minden is adequate facilities. Rental properties are no longer acceptable, so the Realty Corporation will either have to purchase a facility or make arrangements for accommodation in another government owned building.

OPP officials explain

Chief Superintendent of the OPP's Central Region, Bill Hutton, and Staff Sergeant Andy Millar of the Coboconk/Minden detachments attended the meeting. Hutton told council that if suitable accommodations can be found, the administration will return to Minden.

Hutton stated that the OPP is in the process of "right sizing," which means reorganizing to make more efficient use of personnel and equipment.

He explained that 81 per cent of the OPP budget is salaries and wages. He said that 100 Staff Sergeant positions and 300 civilian jobs have been eliminated and that 91 of 260 OPP "processes" have either been eliminated or streamlined. Sergeants are doing less paper work and more patrolling than they have in the past. In addition, court time is down by 60

More staff cuts coming at Hyland Crest

by Andrew Milne

Hyland Crest employees are facing additional staff cuts since last week's total, The Times has been told.

Final numbers on those cuts are supposed to be available later today.

Union personnel also described themselves as upset that they as yet know of no cuts to management personnel hours, and upset that it is taking so long for management to inform the staff what layoffs there will be.

Layoffs will be effective as of the first of August.

The story was not covered in local papers until last Monday, and staff report they were asked to keep quiet about the cuts.

Union representatives said prior to last week they expected between 10 to 13 employees would be cut from the home's total staff of 52. In addition, a majority of the remainder would receive significant reductions in their hours of work.

Hyland Crest administrator Gary McKnight told The Times the cuts would be made final last week, and union representatives had been expecting the same.

However, says CUPE vice-president Ann Bibby, they were told last Thursday there would be additional cuts.

Says Bibby, "We thought it was final until Thursday, and then we were told they had to make further cuts, and that they've deleted a couple more jobs."

Not all of those jobs will mean less hours overall, however, as one of the full-time position's hours will be divided up among part-time workers, says Bibby.

Neither Bibby nor union president Sharon Crowe are happy with this latest delay. It's the delays, they say, that are making things so hard.

Says Bibby, "I would like to make it quite clear, quite publicly that the union intends to cooperate fully with Extendicare... A lot of the things they're going to do are very positive — we can see that already.

"But it's dragged on a lot longer than we thought it would. We were told in May we'd know all about the cuts and the layoffs, and here we are in the middle of July and it's

Staff quit because of shift cuts

No early retirement offers, says McKnight

by Andrew Milne

A reference to early retirement in last week's Times report on layoffs at Hyland Crest has generated some friction at the home.

The reference cites Hyland Crest administrator Gary McKnight as saying the final number of layoffs wouldn't be clear until agreements were reached on early retirements.

The Times believed this was what McKnight had said.

McKnight says he was not referring to early retirement buyouts, but to the fact that a number of staff would be retiring, making it unnecessary to lay so many off. He was not clear on why people were retiring, he said.

"Just for whatever reason," he said, "I have no idea. I didn't ask."

Union sources, however, say if McKnight doesn't know why people are retiring, he should. The retirements are — as reported last week — due to the hour reductions.

Says CUPE representative Sharon Crowe, "Some of them are retiring because their hours are cut, yes. For one girl, that's her only reason. She cannot live on the proposed hours. She's talking about having to move right out of the county. She's probably, most likely going to lose her home."

Crowe said last week that some nurses were facing hour cuts from 45 to 50 hours per two week shift cycles to 30 hours.

Lutterworth Fire

Minden firemen were called to a home on Lutterworth Road, east of the Pole Position Kartways, to extinguish a fire which is believed to have smouldered since the previous night. It is believed the structure, owned by Francis Beeten, was struck by lightning July 10. The smoke filled building was noticed until the afternoon of the following day. The fire was quickly extinguished by the fire fighters, however the home had sustained serious smoke damage. No estimate of damage was available.

PUSHING FOR A RENAISSANCE: Brian Kernohan, of the Minden 2000 economic development committee, delivers his report at last week's meeting. Kernohan designed the phoenix the group is taking as its symbol.

Development committee dreams of rebirth

Like a phoenix from the ashes

by Andrew Milne

Minden rising like a phoenix from its own ashes?

The region's economic development committee is thinking in terms not far removed from that, if their taste in corporate logos is any indication.

The committee's new logo features a phoenix, rising over number 2,000.

The logo, designed by committee member Brian Kernohan, represents the organization's goals.

Says interim chair Larry Hodgson, "The reason we're calling it Minden 2000 is we were looking for a sort of target — a date for which we could shoot. The year 2000 is only four years away, and it's such a significant date on our calendar, we thought we'd use it as our target."

The phoenix?

"I don't know," says Hodgson. "Maybe Brian's a history buff, and he's read about the main street burning down twice before."

The committee is an organization of Minden area citizens — mostly businesspeople.

Committee members are big on 'waking up' a community they say has forgotten how to fight.

Said one last week, "It's as though Minden has just rolled over and quietly gone to sleep. And it's still asleep. I think that's a shame."

Hodgson, for his part, describes the effort as a "wake-up call" for the community.

The group has been at work three months now, and has got a few projects on the go already — the most advanced of which is a new pair of elaborate, carved wooden signs, to be erected at either end of the village.

The sign project, coordinator Lori Roberts reports, is ready to go as soon as the artisan constructing them has finished her work. The committee also has to raise another $1,800 or so to finish paying for them.

The committee also heard last week from Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve Jeanne Anthon, who met with federal development officials on securing funding for the organization. Anthon says she was told the organization should easily be able to secure $15,000 in startup funding, provided they could demonstrate they have expressed goals, a concrete organizational structure and a written budget.

Hodgson says the organization's experience with federal and provincial development agencies has so far been quite positive.

Says Hodgson, "It's pretty exciting for those of us who have been chipping away at this to be told we're head and shoulders above other organizations who have been at this longer."

The committee also presented a draft organizational structure at the meeting. Hodgson described the organization as "bottom up" in nature.

"We want the committee to be directed by the membership... We expect the ideas to bubble up from the bottom," he said.

The group also discussed the establishment of a low-power television station for the area, as a way "for the community to talk to itself", as one supporter puts it, and agreed to write a letter of support to lobbyists attempting to bring the Minden OPP detachment back to the county.

The low-power television signal, an idea suggested by cable TV operator Bill O'Brien, is currently being studied by the committee as a possibility.

O'Brien says the signal could be broadcast throughout the Minden area, and up through the Gull River settlement corridor with directional antennae for a cost that would be quite minimal. Programming, he says, could be provided by community groups.

The most significant hurdle, he says, is determining whether businesses would be prepared to support the service through advertising.

Reference to early retirement offers upsets laid-off staff

Says CUPE vice president Ann Bibby, "They had no intentions of retiring. I can tell you that... [They quit] because their hours were cut. Plus, we had a good idea that whatever the cuts were, it wouldn't be the end of it. We could see even six months down the line their saying that worked, let's try a little bit more.

"So what these people were afraid of was they're giving up their full time job — it's being cut dramatically to maybe half the time. Then what if they were laid off? Their employment would be based on the part time... That hurts when you've got 18 years here... Plus this affects their pensions.... These people would not have retired if their hours weren't cut."

Bibby also says the reference made trouble for the union, because people who had already taken layoffs believed they'd been mistreated. The union had asked about early retirement packages earlier, she said, but the possibility had been rejected.

Says Bibby, "[Crowe] asked [McKnight] about early retirement packages. There's no money for early retirement packages. He made absolutely no offer at all. That's why I was furious when I saw it in the paper. The people who were laid off are furious too. They're coming to us asking why they weren't offered one of these packages."

Milewski won't give up on plan to promote businesses on north side of the bridge

A proposal by Minden business owner Richard Milewski needs some more work, according to Anson, Hindon and Minden council. Milewski's proposal is to have a sign erected at the south side of the bridge in Minden which would advertise businesses on both sides of the bridge. He submitted a computer generated drawing for council's perusal.

Council decided that the proposed sign wasn't suitable as it was submitted because it didn't include all of the businesses south of the bridge.

Councillor Daryl Moore pointed out after the meeting that if all of the 60 or more businesses south of the river were included, the sign would have to be 25 feet high.

"It wouldn't work as he submitted it," Moore said. "If he can bring something back that will work, we'll be happy to take a look at it."

Reeve Jeanne Anthon said it's not just the aesthetics of a sign at the bridge that worries council.

"There's a very real safety concern," she said, adding that the corner of South Water and Main Streets is very busy and there is a danger that someone could be injured if a driver is looking at a number of business names on a sign and not watching the road as carefully as he or she should be.

Businesses move on, and there would be a need to keep the sign up to date.

Anthon said that it is important to give all of the businesses an equal opportunity to be represented.

She said that council has been trying to come up with ways to promote the businesses on the north side of the bridge, but to date no suitable solutions have been found. She added that attractions such as the community centre, library and museum help to draw people to that area of the village.

Meanwhile, Richard Milewski is getting frustrated. His efforts on behalf of all the businesses in Minden are going unrewarded.

"Council should be working with the community's businesses," he said.

Milewski has approached all of the business owners on both sides of the bridge. He says some have indicated that they wouldn't want to have their businesses on the sign. He has revised his original design to three tiers of fingerboard type signs, two tiers for the south side of the bridge and one for the north. He says the sign, with six inch lettering would measure nine feet wide by nine feet high.

He plans to present the revised sign proposal to council at their next meeting.

Editorial

Credit where it's due

To err is human. To admit a mistake and then to take the steps necessary to correct it is commendable.

For admitting to succumbing to human failings, Lutterworth Council deserves a commendation.

With the implementation of Provincial Bill 26, municipal governments were given the option of charging "user fees" for such things as trailer lots within their boundaries. Viewing this as an opportunity to raise much needed revenues in the face of provincial cutbacks in funding and downloading of services, Lutterworth council passed a by-law that would have imposed a $150 user fee for each trailer lot in the municipality's trailer parks.

The biggest mistake the municipal officials made was failing to consult the trailer park owners before the decision was made and the by-law passed. Certainly, some opposition was expected. But council members hadn't given much thought to the implementation of such fees from the trailer park owners' perspective.

Representatives from all three of the township's currently operating trailer parks attended the next meeting of council after the by-law was passed. They had some convincing arguments why such a fee was excessive. Convincing enough to get council to set a special meeting specifically to deal with their concerns.

In the meantime park owners were invited to study the by-law and come up with suggestions they could live with.

When the day of the special meeting arrived, the park owners were prepared. They were opposed to individual lot fees, but not against a reasonable licence fee.

Both sides remained level-headed and the discussions were respectful and civil.

In the end, a park owner's suggestion was adopted and a graduated licence fee was implemented. Instead of facing thousands of dollars in fees, which would certainly have been passed on to the campers, park owners will be paying as little as $150 per year for 49 trailer sites or fewer. The maximum, for parks that have 100 or more trailer sites, will be $400.

Consultations with the parties concerned can save time and energy, which might be better spent on other business. Federal and provincial levels of government often hold public consultations, but seldom appear to heed the advice they claim to seek. Lutterworth doesn't fit into that mould.

It will be interesting to see if other municipal governments learn from Lutterworth's experience.

Clinic worth the wait

Editor:

Re. The blood donor clinic grumbles:

I too was taken aback at the announcement of a long wait - having donated at many locations over the years, including this one, I have never experienced a wait longer than half an hour or so.

It did occur to me, however, that perhaps this wait, out of my control, ridiculously long (three hours!) was a small taste of what it must be like to be ill or need surgery and have to wait for available blood.

And I hope that if I am ever in that unfortunate position, there will be the atmosphere of comraderie, community, bad jokes, ridiculous puns, gossip and GOOD FEELINGS that were generated in that room that evening.

Thanks, Red Cross, for a good time - probably will be ready for the larger crowd next year, and it won't be near as much fun.

Misplaced memories

To whom it may concern:

When my grandmother died a few years ago, all the grandchildren were given one item from her belongings. I desperately wanted her wallet because as a child, I always thought of it as magical. My grandmother was forever claiming she had no money, yet when I visited her, she would secretly take me into her bedroom and say, "well let me see if I have a few coppers left for you." Magically a quarter would appear which she would give to me. After she died, I did receive her wallet with a lucky penny in it. The wallet has been lucky for me, however on Friday, July 12, my luck ran out.

While shopping at Dollo's IGA, I lost the wallet. Although there was a large sum of money in it, I would gladly forfeit the money in exchange for my grandmother's magical wallet. It can be returned through the Minden Times mail slot or by calling 286-3858. I will be eternally grateful.

Museum rebuttal

Editor:

Re. Irene Moore's letter ... a mile in our shoes

■ The artwork for the museum raffle was provided to the museum committee at my wholesale cost, not purchased at retail price.

■ The funds for the picture was expended from ticket sales.

■ Of the 1999 saleable tickets Mr. Lee Oster sold the bulk.

■ The museum committee sold four books (actually three and a half).

■ The remaining tickets were sold by myself from the store.

■ Next raffle please arrange to obtain your major prize from another retailer.

Excellent tour

Editor:

I was one of the lucky 500 or so who attended the first Minden Home and Garden Tour on July 13 and wish to publicly thank and commend the organizers of this event.

Each and every home on the tour was impressive and at each stop the host and/or hostess graciously welcomed visitors making one feel very comfortable and wanted.

Congratulations to the committee and to the homeowners who went that extra mile to make the day such an enjoyable one.

Your hard work certainly paid off - I look forward to the next one!

The end of an era

Black 'n White
by Arthur Black

The English language is full of beautiful words. Here are a few of mine: Lullaby. Murmuring. Calliope. Hush.

Here is another you don't often hear: Variola.

A beautiful word for a terrible scourge. Variola is another name for smallpox - which is another word you don't hear much anymore. But there was a time - and it wasn't so very long ago, either.

Smallpox is a disease that was once more common than influenza - and a good deal more brutal. Millions of humans contracted the dreaded smallpox over literally thousands of years. It was more virulent than cholera, bubonic plague and yellow fever, and it left its victims with hideous pockmarks, pits, scars - and frequently blindness.

Smallpox scars were so commonplace that less than a hundred years ago, fashionable women - and men- commonly pasted dots of black cloth on their faces to hide the ravages of the disease.

Thus was born the 'beauty spot'.

The Chinese came up with a vaccination for smallpox as long ago as 590 AD, but it wasn't terribly effective. Nothing was until an English physicist named Edward Jenner started playing around with it in the late 18th century.

Jenner came up with the idea of 'infecting' a victim to promote the development of antibodies that would immunize the victim against the real thing.

He found a dairy maid by the name of Sarah Nelmes who had been infected with cowpox, a milder form of the disease. He took some pus from her hand and vaccinated a young boy with it. The boy recovered without a trace.

For the first time in history, man had come up with a safe, reliable weapon against smallpox.

That was in 1796. This year marks the 200th anniversary of the smallpox vaccination. You'd think there would be some sort of party, but there won't be. Instead, the World Health Organization, which keeps an eye on world trends in disease, is preparing to deliberately destroy the last remaining stocks of smallpox virus.

The only place you will find smallpox in the world these days is frozen in test tubes in two government laboratories - one in Atlanta, Georgia, the other in Koltsovo, Russia.

That's because smallpox is dead. Extinct. No more. W.H.O. declared smallpox officially eradicated 16 years ago. They've been holding on to the virus just in case they were wrong. Now they are determined to wipe every trace of the virus off the planet. It marks the first deliberate extinction of a species in history, but no one is rushing to the barricades.

So what happens if some mutant strain emerges from darkest Africa or the mountains of Tibet? Not to worry. The World Health Organization will keep smallpox vaccine on hand. Enough to vaccinate 500,000 people in the unlikely event that smallpox somehow rears its ugly Death's Head once again.

It's an amazing success story. What's more amazing is that more isn't being made of it. Smallpox was a commonplace fact of everyday life for our grandparents. Even thirty years ago, smallpox was raging through 31 countries and infecting more than 15 million humans every year.

And now it's gone. We're still vaporizing the ozone, still chewing up our rainforests and pouring poisons into our oceans, lakes, rivers. We haven't yet learned how to make our air more breathable, or our generals less bloodthirsty. We're still paving farmland and permitting our cities to turn rotten at the core.

But we've licked smallpox. It gives one hope.

Chalk one up for our side.

Mayo says OPP move done "behind the backs of Haliburton County" percent. The Chief Superintendent said that by amalgamating the Coboconk and Minden offices, it will eliminate the need for two court officers and two community service officers, freeing up two more officers for general duty.

"We're maintaining the front-line services," Hutton assured. "No decision has been made as to where the administration centre (for Minden-Coboconk) will be."

A new computer system has been installed at the Coboconk OPP office, but Hutton said that doesn't mean Coboconk has been chosen as the administrative centre. He said that administration jobs in Coboconk were offered to the three people from the Minden office. Two declined, opting for the severance package instead.

"We hired two new people; both of them live in Haliburton County," he said.

To reinforce his argument that front-line services are of prime importance, Hutton said that 37 new constables must be hired by the end of July. He added that policing is a provincial responsibility and that Haliburton County may lose one or two officers temporarily if an emergency arises in another area and extra officers are needed. But, he added that there may be times when Haliburton County will need more personnel, in which case, officers will be seconded from other areas to meet Haliburton's needs.

Hutton said that the OPP budget has been cut by $17-million and a further $8-million in cuts are expected. Restructuring of the force is being done in an attempt to cope with the funding cuts.

Responding to concerns that there seem to be fewer officers on patrol, Hutton said that local officers have switched to 12-hour shifts and that they are working the same number of hours.

"Crime is down 15 per cent from what it was five years ago," Hutton added.

After the meeting, Warden Fearrey commented that he was satisfied with the clear commitment to bring the administration back to Minden if adequate facilities are secured.

"I'm not totally satisfied with the way staffing levels are being handled," he added.

Mayo wasn't impressed with Hutton's presentation.

"It was nothing more than a dog and pony show to appease the people of Haliburton County," he said.

Convinced that the county's efforts have been in vain, Mayo said, "Nothing is going to happen unless the people protest. Haliburton County has been dumped on. It's going to take a lot of hard work. The fight has just begun. If they think we're going to lie down and die, they're mistaken."

A letter, fax and telephone campaign to Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson and Solicitor General Bob Runciman will be the next step. After that's Mayo suggests, the protest could spill onto Highway 35 as well as the grounds of Queen's Park, with people carrying placards.

"I've had a fantastic amount of support from everyone I've spoken to," Mayo said.

Mayo also spoke to the Minden region's economic development committee last week. The committee has agreed to write a letter of support.

"Business owners have got to realize this is a business issue too," said Mayo. "It will affect development."

Mayo told the committee he hopes to have a banner flying over Minden, demanding the detachment be returned.

Said Mayo to the committee, "What really stirred me up is that like a lot of us, I hadn't heard anything about this, and then all of a sudden it had happened... It's a matter of how it was done.

"They did it behind the backs of Haliburton county."

Said Mayo, "We've got to fight to keep what we've got, and if it's gone, we've got to fight to get it back."

First place in the heavy pony class went to Dennis Stamp of Wyebridge. His team drew 3,400 pounds. The win earned Stamp the Sunrise Convenience (Norland) Trophy.

$1,000 bill winner

The raffle for a $1,000 bill was won by Brenda Bodnar of Barrie. The lucky ticket number was 3264.

Serious cyclists

The annual Minden Kinsmen Club's bike-a-thon for Cystic Fibrosis raised over $1,200 July 14. More than 25 riders took part in the annual event. These six participants received plaques for bringing in the most pledges in their age groups. They include, from the left, front row, Rebecca Neave and Jeff Carrell, in the back row, Larry Anderson, Stephanie Crowe representing the TD Bank team, Leah Anderson and Graham Neave. Following the ride from the Minden Fairgrounds to the Rackety Trail and back, the cyclists enjoyed a snack and beverages prepared by members of the Kinsmen Club. Refreshments along the bike route were provided by Dollo's IGA.

Essay contest winners enjoy a day of fishing with conservation officers

Three Grade 5 students from JD Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton and members of their families spent several hours fishing with conservation officers on July 6, during the MNR's Free Fishing Weekend. The three, one from each Grade 5 class at JDHES, were chosen winners of a Family Fishing Essay Contest, the topic of which was: "Explain why you think fishing is a good family thing to do."

The contest was the brainchild of Bill Hutson, Enforcement Co-Ordinator with the Minden and Bancroft Ministry of Natural Resources offices.

The event was co-sponsored by the Ontario Conservation Officers' Association and the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association.

Essays were submitted to the three teachers by May 31 and the teachers selected one winner from each class.

Dustin Prindiville of 5A, Trevour Trantau of 5B and Norman Smith of 5C were chosen from among the submissions.

Norman Smith said he enjoys fishing because it's relaxing and fun.

"My family is into fishing and, not to brag or anything but, we're pretty good," he said. "It's not how many fish you catch or how big they are, it is just enjoying the time that you have. Fishing has to be one of the best family sports there is."

He reminded everyone not to forget one of the angler's most important accessories -- bug spray.

Dustin Prindiville says his favourite way of fishing is with his family.

"When we go on a family fishing trip, I have the most fun because my little sisters get so excited and I love to see the smiles on their faces when I help them bait a hook or help them reel in a fish," he said. "They get so excited they don't know which way to reel the handle to land their catch."

He said showing his sisters how to fish reminds him of how his dad taught him to fish.

"When we are outdoors fishing it gives us all a chance to be together and have fun, instead of worrying about household duties and chores," he wrote.

The next best thing to catching the fish, according to Dustin, is having a shore lunch with the fish they catch. He said his mom and sisters usually eat hot dogs because they don't like fish. That's fine

Stay cut short by Hodgkin's disease

Danish exchange student returns for visit

by Misty Bennett

Haliburton County opened its arms this past month to a returning Rotary exchange student.

Signe Mandrup Christophersen returned to the Highlands for almost a month's vacation.

Mandrup had to return to her home town of Odense, Denmark two years ago, after her nearly year-long stay in Minden. Her departure — three months earlier than planned — was due to health problems.

Signe had been taken to Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto by her then host mother Ethel Muli. The doctor whom she saw at the hospital told her that she should return home.

"He said there was a serious problem and that he wanted me to go home," says Mandrup.

No diagnosis was given at the hospital and following the doctor's advice Mandrup returned home to Denmark.

Immediately following her return home, Mandrup underwent tests and a biopsy and was diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease. She has undergone chemotherapy and has been cured of her illness.

"I don't have a one hundred percent clean bill of health. It takes a long time to recover fully, but I am cured," she says.

When Mandrup arrived in Canada for her year in Minden, she had already completed a year of business school. She had planned to complete the remaining two years of school upon her arrival back home, but her illness put a damper on her plans.

Mandrup had to start slow — completing only two of a normal eight courses the first year. She finished the remaining six classes this past year. She will take on a full work load and complete her schooling this coming year.

"I was pretty happy to be able to go to school during my treatment... I could at least try to have a normal life," says Mandrup.

She's not sure yet what her future holds..

"I haven't really decided yet, I have lots of options," she says.

She thinks she will likely go back to school, likely in a year's time, if not right away. She hopes to combine some work experience with some of the classes that she will be taking.

"I wouldn't mind working in a company that deals in exportation or something with the opportunity for me to travel and use my language skills," she says.

Mandrup is fluent in Danish, English and German and speaks Spanish as well.

Mandrup arrived in Canada with only one plan, and that was to see her old friends. She has accomplished that goal.

"I stayed with the Obees for the first week and the Mulis for a couple of days, and in between I've been flying around visiting my old host families and old friends," she says.

Her vacation has been filled with lots of activities, including a trip to Toronto where she saw Beauty and the Beast and the view from the CN Tower.

"I've been swimming, water skiing, even paddle boat riding — just enjoying the Highlands," says Mandrup.

"I'm doing some of the things that I couldn't do on exchange. It's nice to be here on my own, I don't need permission to do things."

Mandrup will be leaving the community on Tuesday, and will be flying home that evening.

"It's been great to be back and see everybody. It's something I've wanted to do since I've been back home. It was a stupid way that I left, I was so rushed and I wasn't ready to leave."

Signe Mandrup Christophersen: back for a visit.

Cub's Joke Corner

The company had been out on maneuvers all day. "How far to the bivouac Sarge?" one of the soldiers asked.

"About three miles," was the reply.

An hour later another soldier piped up "How far now Sarge?"

"About three miles."

Another hour passed a third soldier asked the same question and got the same reply.

"At least," mumbled a fourth, "we're holding our own."

Quote:

"It's so flat, it's the only town you can watch your dog run away for three days."

Former Toronto Maple Leafs coach Pat Burns on the charm of Winnipeg

Till next month, drive carfully in this summer traffic.

Thanks - Cub

with Dustin; all the more fish for him and his dad.

Trevour Trantau says fishing is a good family sport because both girls and boys are equally skilled.

"As long as you are old enough to be around a hook, you're old enough to have fun and catch fish," he said.

He offered some tips on keeping costs down by catching your own bait, instead of buying worms, frogs or crayfish.

"You don't have to enjoy the taste of fish but you can enjoy the challenge of catching a fish and the sight of releasing it and watching it swim away," he said.

Fishing in new places gives family members the chance to explore and enjoy nature, Trevour says.

Fishing is peaceful and relaxing and everyone enjoys the action when one of the family is reeling one in.

"Fishing also gives you time to talk," he says.

The Trantau family fishes year-round, taking advantage of the seasons that are open.

"My family and I have a lot of fun when we all go fishing," he concluded.

The three winners each received a rod and reel and the anglers took a break at noon for a shore lunch.

Hutson said the day was a success and the essay contest will be an annual event. The 1997 contest will be for Grade 5 students of Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden.

County Council opposes changes to Health Unit status

The Ontario Ministry of Health has stated it wants to reduce the number of health units across the province. Ministry proposals that are being considered include splitting the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge Health Unit and aligning sections with neighbouring health units or amalgamating the local health unit with Peterborough.

Haliburton County council doesn't like either proposal. That was evident in the passing of a resolution endorsing the retention of the present health unit boundaries, namely the area covered by the counties of Haliburton, Victoria and Northumberland. In addition, the resolution opposes the division of the health unit area or amalgamation with other health units as proposed by the Ministry of Health. It was further resolved that the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge Health Unit be encouraged to continue with cost saving measures that do not reduce the level of public health service to the people of this county or disrupt the local nature of such services.

Councillor Keith Tallman, the county's representative on the board of the local health unit, told council that the Public Health Branch at Queen's Park wants to reduce the number of health units across the province by eight to 10.

"But they don't want to touch Metro Toronto," he said. "I don't know why."

Tallman said the reasons the Ministry have stated for amalgamation don't apply here.

The Ministry has said it can save 15 per cent by amalgamating.

"We have our own plan that would save 15 per cent," Tallman said.

The health unit is governed by a board of elected directors appointed by the three counties plus provincial appointees, which council believes assures meaningful and proportionate representation and policy input for Haliburton County.

It is felt that splitting off portions of the health unit and merging them with other health units, or amalgamating the local health unit with another, would dilute the county's ability to influence policy.

The resolution points out that there is no evidence that a split or amalgamation would have a positive impact on cost containment, service to the public or overall benefit to local communities.

It is also noted that the present arrangement is working satisfactorily.

Provincial public health budget cuts will have a greater impact on rural residents than on urban residents. Figures of $1.93 for rural residents as opposed to 56 cents for those in urban areas were cited.

The county's resolution continued its argument by stating that the additional savings proposed by the Ministry of Health, through health unit amalgamations, will disproportionately affect rural populations through an additional provincial funding reduction of $1.05 per capita, in comparison with a 13 cent per capita additional funding reduction for urban populations.

Trent-Severn Waterway report

Rains again added to the surplus on the Kawarthas resulting in flow increases along the Otonabee and Trent Rivers. The Haliburton area lakes declined only modestly again reaching 84.5% by July 15. This is still very near the 21-year average for this date.

With surplus flow to run from the Kawarthas no flow will be drawn for navigation purposes from the Haliburton Lakes. The flows are being maintained from them though in order not to accumulate more than normal. Hurricane season is upon us, and should one stray enough to hit this area the lakes would be better to be lower beforehand.

Otonabee, Trent and Severn Rivers' flows continue greater than normal as do the level of Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching.

Boating issues central at Canning Lake meeting

The Canning Lake Property Owners Association has endorsed a resolution calling for the licensing of all boat operators in the province. The motion passed at the group's annual meeting held July 6 at the Rigney property on the lake.

It followed a lengthy discussion with two members of the Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police. Constables Brian Ladurantaye and Dave Trepanier were in attendance to answer questions on a number of policing matters.

Most prominent on the list of questions posed by the association members was the matter of the safe operation of boats. One member pointed out that rental boats, particularly personal water craft, have become a problem on the lake. The meeting was told that the drivers of these craft appear to receive little or no instruction on their safe operation or on the rules of boating, when renting the craft. The members were concerned that the personal water craft often violated the 30 metre shore limit or the speed limit, especially when travelling through the narrows from Kashagawigamog. "It is time we mobilize before there is a fatality," one member of the association said.

The officers explained that at the moment there is no age limit on the operation of the craft or requirement for training.

The association also endorsed a resolution calling for the full reinstatement of the Minden detachment of the OPP. The resolution pointed out that police services are vital to the members of the association and the members in fact pay taxes in two communities.

The group was told by Constable Ladurantaye that Canning Lake has not been as hard hit as other cottage areas in regard to break-ins. He suggested the large number of permanent residents deters potential thieves. He pointed out however, that more responsibility is falling to the residents of the area, seasonal and permanent, to assist in identifying suspicious vehicles or individuals in the area. "If you see what appears to be a vehicle in a suspicious circumstance, note the licence number and report it to the dispatcher."

OPP Constables Brian Ladurantaye and Dave Trepanier, left, address the annual meeting of the Canning Lake Property Owners Association earlier this month.

Medical services

Foster Loucks, the executive director of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Board, was the guest speaker at the meeting. He reviewed the history of the health services board and highlighted some of the changes which have taken place over the past year, including the board's incorporation and acquiring control of the two hospitals.

He told the meeting that the board has been told it

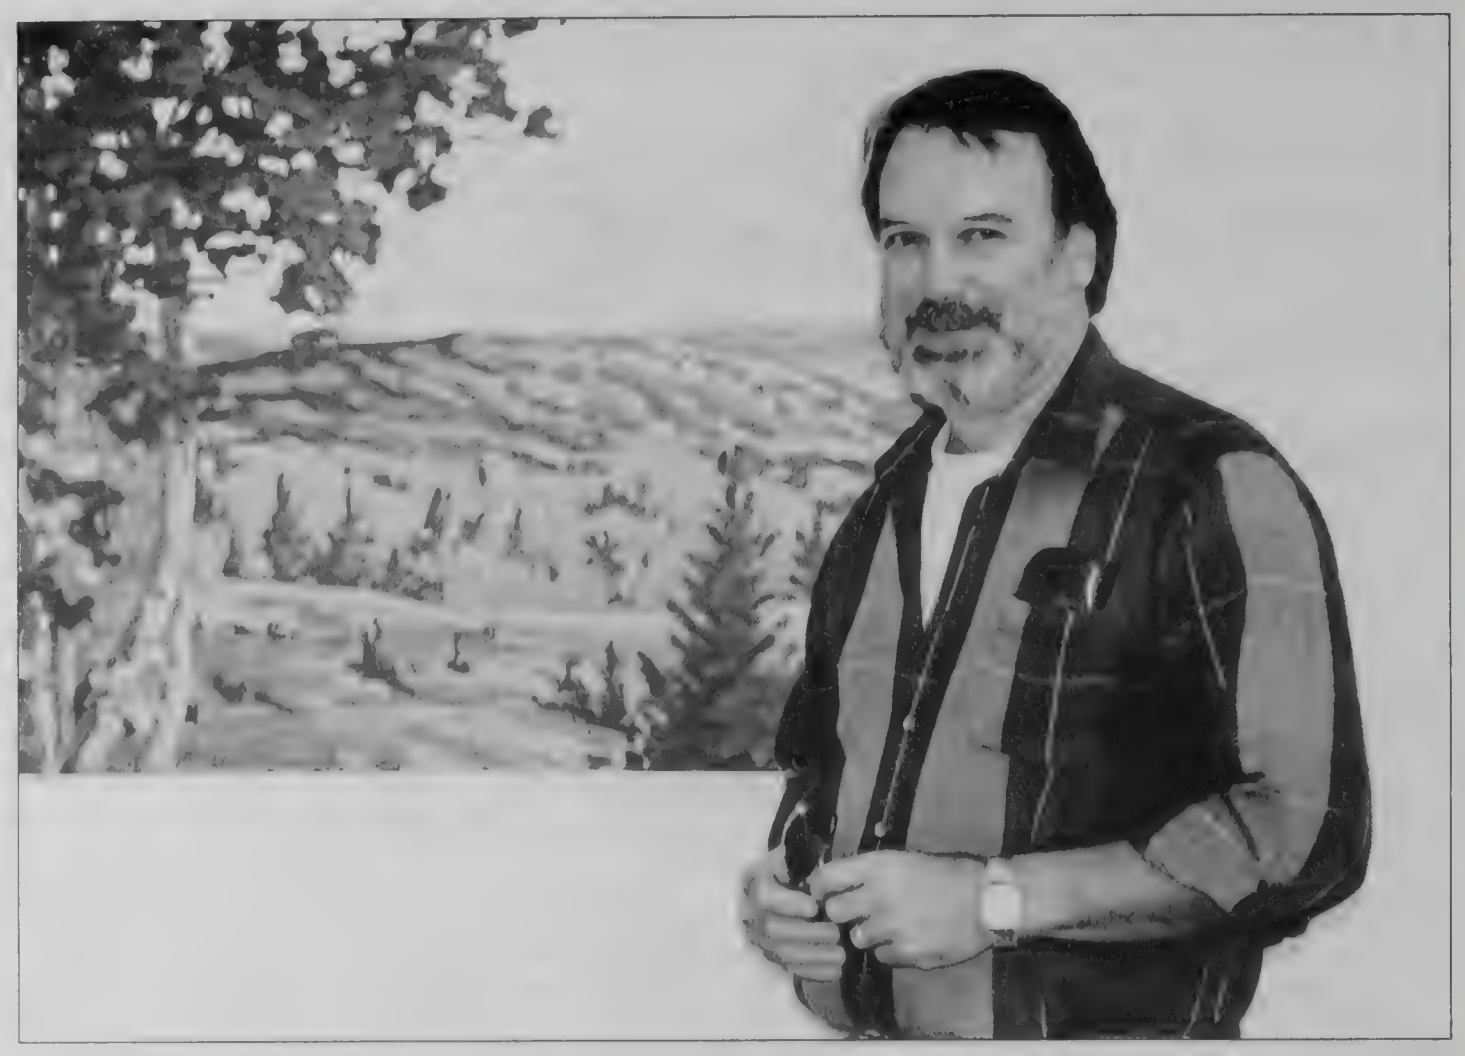
A.J. Gallery features works of Vicki Cross and John Lennard



John Lennard stands with one of his many paintings at the Agnes Jameson Gallery during the opening of his latest showing.

by Misty Bennett

The Agnes Jamieson Gallery hosted the opening of an art show on Saturday. The show features local artists John Lennard and Vicki Cross.

The collection of art had been on display in the Gallery prior to the opening, however, Saturday marked the official starting date.

Vicki Cross' hobby of basketry began with loom weaving, which she has taken her experience from and adapted to making her baskets.

Cross uses a variety of media in her basketry, which adds to the appeal and originality of her baskets.

"I'll use anything that will weave; iris leaves, cedar roots, grape vines, rushes, cedar bark, grasses, anything that will bend and stay," says Cross.

She enjoyed a trip to Arizona where she was able to see some examples of Native basketry. Cross admits that she would like to stay on one of the reservations and learn some of the Natives' techniques.

Cross estimates she's been doing basketry for about 10 years, but has been collecting the materials that she uses in the baskets for a long time.

For now, basketry is just a hobby for Cross, and although she does sell much of her work, she admits she can't make a living from it.

This is the largest showing of Cross' work to date. She has been involved with other shows, but only a couple of her pieces were on display.

Painter John Lennard is the other artist featured at the Gallery this month.

His collection of paintings, all created in oils, are of Haliburton and Algonquin Park area landscapes.

Although Lennard's sketches are often first done in watercolour or pencil, his primary medium is oil.

He has been painting for more than 30 years.

"I've been painting full-time and working part-time to pay the bills," he says.

Lennard spent much of his time painting the local areas and decided to move here permanently. He and his wife moved into the area in 1989, and have been here ever since.

"I love this area, I think it comes from growing up here in the summers," says Lennard. His parents built a cottage in the Highlands in 1950.

Lennard admits he has been inspired by many great artists both known and unknown.

"Van Gogh was my original inspiration, as well as Monet and the impressionists; and Tom Thompson, I still love his work," says Lennard.

Lennard admits that he learns from everyone, even his students at the Buckhorn School of Art.

Lennard does sketches on-site and takes the sketches home, where the final paintings are produced in his studio.

"I find I put too much detail in a painting if I do it on the spot," says Lennard.

Photographs are used only for colour references, which Lennard often exaggerates in his paintings.

The show, featuring these two artists, will continue at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery until August 10.

Police services called 'vital'

Canning calls for reinstatement of Minden OPP

must operate the health services within its mandate with $2.5 million from the provincial government. He pointed out this amount was the same as the two hospitals received last year and so in an era when budgets are being cut, this was fortunate. He noted, however, that the board would have to be creative if it wanted to receive the maximum return for the money it receives. Loucks told the members that services at the two hospitals will likely follow the same pattern as last year with no change in Haliburton, but the emergency hours at the Minden facility slowly being reduced after the summer season. Through a large portion of the winter last year, the Minden Hospital was only open 12 hours a day.

Loucks had praise for the doctors who have been working the hospital's emergency ward. He suggested the seasonal residents take advantage of their presence if they have a non-emergency medical requirement and have difficulty obtaining an appointment at the Lions Medical Centre.

The executive director noted that the board has received approval for a major capital project, including the renovation or reconstruction of Hyland Crest with the Minden hospital services attached to the facility, the addition of 30 new long term care beds to Haliburton and the renovation of the Haliburton Hospital to accommodate an expanded number of acute care beds and services to the long-term care patients. He noted that more than $3 million in community funds will be needed to see these projects through. He promised to be in contact with the group once the fund raising has begun and said the board hoped to begin construction by next spring.

Reeves report

Since Canning Lake straddles the boundary of Minden and Snowdon townships, the reeves of both municipalities regularly attend the meeting and this one was no exception.

Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon was the first to address the gathering. Following on the health services theme, she told the members that a new doctor would be starting at the Lions Medical Clinic on July 15, which should help ease the shortage of physicians in the community, although, as she pointed out, more are still needed.

The Reeve received a round of applause from the members when she noted the municipality hoped to install recycling facilities at the Ingoldsby dump soon. For the moment those services are only available at the Scotch Line Landfill site near Minden.

Snowdon Reeve George Simmons offered a warning to the group. "This is just the calm before the storm," he said, noting that the county is currently studying how best to re-configure the municipal boundaries. He told the members the committee studying the proposal has one of two plans to consider, a move to a single tier municipal government or consolidating the number of municipalities into, perhaps, five larger units and retaining the county structure.

Water quality

The meeting was told by Roly Wagg that the water in Canning Lake continues to be rated as excellent. He noted however, that assessment criteria have recently changed, and he wasn't sure if the lake would attain the same rating under the old system. He was confident, however, from the material he had reviewed, that the quality of the water was at least remaining stable.

He pointed out that after 24 years of continuous monitoring, Canning Lake has been monitored longest. He noted that the lengthy history is valuable in assessing long-term changes to the quality of the lake.

Other matters

■ the members were advised that the association had donated $50 to the Tim Heming Bursary fund. The Heming family was a former member of the association. Tim Heming died earlier this year. The money will be used to assist the education of special needs children.

■ the association has also made a $250 contribution to assist the Minden Lions Club in the purchase of the medical centre.

■ 35 members of the association turned out for the Pitch In Garbage (PIG) day roadside clean-up campaign held earlier this month. They collected enough litter and garbage from the roadside to fill a truck one a half times.

■ the winners of last year's Fred Jones Bass Award were announced. The prize was shared by Doug Flemming and Jennifer Wright who took the honour with a two pound bass.

New executive

President Ross Rigney stepped down as president of the association. He was thanked for his years of service to the organization. The membership accepted the report of the nominating committee and elected the following officers for the coming year: president Terry Wilkins; vice presidents Larry Bebennsee and one position vacant; secretary David Whalen; treasurer Irving Green; directors Gary Ford, June Jefford, Gus Janca, Paul Kitchen, Michael Mitchell, Lois Rigney, Helene Schewchuk, Roly Wagg, Reg Smith, George Wright, Doug Shaw, Dave Turner, Susan Henderson, Janet Bond, Ken Marlow and Ed Brown; past presidents Ross Rigney, Roger Saarimaki, Gary Kapac and Jim Mitchell.

Health Corner

The 4 components of fitness.

Why train?

1) Cardiovascular Endurance: to improve the efficiency of the respitory and circulatory systems; to reduce the incidence of disease associated with the heart and circulatory system; to feel more energetic, sleep better, reduce tension - all the standard benefits of fitness.

2) Muscular Strength and Endurance: important in overall body performance and maintaining a healthy muscular skeletal system; efficiency of the body depends upon the condition of the large muscles of the legs, arms, trunk and especially abdominal and back muscles.

3) Flexibility: to improve the range of joint motion; to lessen the possibility of injury; to improve posture, form and enable graceful movements.

To be continued.

What is CAVEAT? CAVEAT is an acronym for Canadians Against Violence Everywhere, Advocating its Terminations. This not for profit organization was founded in October 1992. CAVEAT's goal is to "contribute to the creation and maintenance of a just, peaceful and safe society." CAVEAT focus on three major areas. The education of successful crime prevention, to promote greater rights for victims and provide a support system to the victims and to encourage judicial and legislative reform. CAVEAT is very involved in its mission. Members take part in both provincial and national conferences, participate in workshops and discussions which focus on the prevention of crime. CAVEAT members are also available for public speaking and have established an independent Victim's Assistance Fund. If you would like further information about CAVEAT, please give us a call at the Information Centre.

Weeks from the end, Hyland Crest staff still waiting for the final word still going on, and we're not all that happy about that... We've just had one excuse after another why we hadn't been told... We tried to get hold of Gary [McKnight]. We tried to get hold of board members and say look, our people are getting sick over this. They don't know what to do.... They need to know if they have jobs or not. They gave different reasons — all very vague — until a couple of weeks ago when the executive was called in by Gary and told these are the cuts that are going to be made."

Crowe says the issue of cuts to management hours is also important. "But when I asked about it," she says, "I was told it was none of my business."

Bibby says she wants it put nicely, but she wants to see management show they're sharing the pain too.

Says Bibby, "We — and that's the whole union body — could accept this a little more if we knew the supervisors were taking more punishment. The first thing they're saying is these cuts have to happen or the place is going to close down and everybody is going to be out of a job, so everyone has to cut. It's fine saying this when you're not going to be affected. What they want to see is someone on the management side hurting a little bit... If they care so much about the home, and they care so much about the jobs, why aren't they putting a little back too? We're hearing, oh, I'm putting in more hours, but I'm sorry, you're still taking home the same paycheque. That doesn't matter much to the girls who are not taking home the same paycheque."

The facility — currently owned by the County of Haliburton — has been 'red-circled' by the province since 1992, meaning the province feels the home's expenditures are out of line with other facilities delivering similar services.

The county brought in Extendicare — a large, multinational long-term care provider to help operate the home a few months ago, and county sources say Extendicare is advising the county's committee on the layoffs. Extendicare, Crowe says, has plans to move some of the residents around, and that this may very well make the facility a little more efficient, and a little easier to staff.

Bibby says, though the membership is understandably angry with the rather vague and belated signals from management, she isn't down on Extendicare, and that no one can yet say what effect the changes will have on patient care, though naturally she has concerns.

Says Bibby, "These are the experts. They're in business when other people aren't... We have to trust them. I think the only thing we can say about the resident care is we're going to have to see. I don't think anyone knows how it's going to be. I know that we work very very hard right now — every second is busy — and to even imagine that time can be cut is just puzzling, but I'm not saying it can't be done. If these people can show me how to do it, I'm all for it... I think we all have to have a positive attitude or we're not going to get anywhere."

PERSONAL

"SO SAD, BIG LAD"
Barry was born in the midst of July.
What can we say, he's one heck of a guy.
The words "Dweeb" and "Nerd" will do in a fix
Now that he's just turned fifty-six.
The old "Silver Fox", with his sullen frown
Hates to admit that he's slowing down.
Unable to weld or work the horses
Though he's doing quite well with his quilting courses.
Starting to dote, unable to hear
Kind of pathetic, the poor old dear.
Here's to B.J., that geriatric lad,
Hates to get older, gets really mad.
Mention his age, he goes off in a huff,
But don't worry Connelly, you've done enough.
So when you see this old geezer strolling the town
Lend him a hand, now that he's DOWN.
Happy birthday from:
The year is 96
Your age is 56
That only leaves the best at 40!

HAPPY 50TH ANNIVERSARY to Lila & Bill Mitchell.
Wishing a fine couple
All the best for many years.
Bill & Darlene.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Bea Taylor would like to thank the staff and Palliative Care volunteers of Hyland Crest for the wonderful care our Mother received. We would also like to thank the Homecare Service and V.O.N. for their good deeds while she was home. A special thanks to the Monk Funeral Home and Rev. Peter for his most comforting words and beautiful service. Thank you to the friends, relatives and neighbours who sent flowers, donations, cards, food and many caring phone calls. To the ladies who worked so hard to serve the delicious and most generous lunch, we thank you.
Gratefully yours,
The Taylor Family.

IN MEMORIAM

LACEY - In loving memory of a dear father, grandfather and great grandfather, Cliff, who passed away July 6, 1987.
Please God, forgive a silent tear
A fervent wish our Papa was here.
There are others, yes we know
But he was ours; we loved him so.
Dear God, take a message
To our Papa in heaven above,
Tell him how much we miss him
And give him all our love.
Greatly missed by the families of Simpson, Lacey, Jones, Oatman and Cruikshank.

Lovingly remembered by your wife Luverne, son Barry, Carol, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

LICHTY - In loving memory of a beloved nephew and cousin, Jordan Lee Gary, who passed away July 28, 1992.

Sent here but for a while;
God, for a moment gave him birth,
And took him with a smile.
Lovingly remembered by Auntie Carla, Uncle Steve, Jamie, David and Jacqueline.

THOMAS, Madelaine - In loving memory a dear friend who will always be remembered and missed.
Nell.
